PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

Trade conditions and taxes are at the heart of many business decisions. In a world where trade is global, knowledge of only domestic rules is inadequate. With our Master's in European and International Trade and Tax Law you will be able to help businesses and institutions operate in a worldwide context with the European Union's legal framework in focus. The Master's in European and International Trade and Tax Law builds on previous studies in law, economics, business administration, political science or international relations.

The programme provides an in-depth understanding of both the practical and theoretical aspects of trade and tax law within the EU as well as globally, in accordance with the chosen track. Important law- and policymakers in these fields are, among others, the European Union (EU), the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and the World Trade Organisation (WTO).

International trade evolves rapidly. Those interested in doing business within the EU and globally must know the rules governing their business-operations. Contemporary international trade law involves multiple fields of law, which affect all aspects of business. Firms and institutions must constantly be prepared to adapt to new challenges. For example, climate considerations and other issues of sustainability transform the business environment globally. In addition, digitalisation, artificial intelligence and automation create new legal issues for businesses and legislatures.

The programme provides you with access to an international faculty with state-of-the-art knowledge in the field and experience from working with the courts and institutions of the European Union and in private practice. We offer you a unique combination of specialist courses with special focus on EU law. The courses are designed to meet the demands of the market for cutting-edge knowledge on multi-jurisdictional legal issues.

Due to our close connections with the business community our courses feature guest lectures by highly specialised professionals providing you with practical and theoretical insights on European and International trade and tax law issues. In the specialisation in tax law you will meet with tax practitioners working with these issues from, for example, EY and Deloitte.

PROGRAMME MODULES/COURSES

When applying to this programme, you elect either the European and international trade law track or the European and international tax law track. The first track leads to a Master's degree in European and international trade law and modules are possible to combine across the areas. The second track leads to a Master's degree in European and international tax law.

CAREER PROSPECTS

The EU and international law methods and the knowledge and skills taught in the programme are a necessity for consultants, legal advisors, judges and civil servants involved in international business and transactions, as well as for business decision-makers. The programme is suited for employment within private practice, national and EU institutions, international organisations and legal research.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS AND HOW TO APPLY

Entry requirements

An undergraduate degree in Law; or an undergraduate degree in Economics, Business Administration, Political Science or International Relations (or equivalent), including 15 credits in Law or equivalent knowledge. English Level 6.

Additional requirements for the specialisation in European and International Tax Law: An undergraduate degree in Law, including 15 credits in Tax Law or equivalent knowledge; or an undergraduate degree in Economics, Business Administration, Political Science or International Relations (or equivalent), including 30 credits in Tax Law or equivalent knowledge.

“The programme was an incredible experience on both academic and professional levels, as it provided an extensive legislative and doctrinal view on the theory and practice of tax law. The small class size, with students from many interesting legal cultures and jurisdictions, accommodated close interaction with the faculty and valuable exchange of ideas – the mentorship, guidance and encouragement provided by the faculty has been invaluable!”

Nikolaos Kratimenos from Greece, now working as Manager at EY
