Programme overview
With a unique combination of perspectives from political science, social work, sociology and economics, this programme provides you with a broad range of knowledge and skills intended for the management and administration of welfare services. The courses are based on a comparative approach, highlighting differences and similarities across countries, administrative levels and policy areas, including a European Union perspective. In addition to being active researchers in their own field of expertise, our teachers have undergone educational training and make use of modern teaching and assessment techniques. We also bring practitioners into our courses, and make visits to different types of agencies involved in the production of welfare services.

Knowledge and skills acquired on the programme
- In-depth knowledge of welfare regimes in different parts of the world
- A basic understanding of public economics, leadership and management in relation to welfare services
- The ability to apply techniques and methods for evaluating public and private welfare programmes
- Advanced analytical and methodological skills

Programme modules/courses
COURSES AND NUMBER OF CREDITS: Welfare Regimes in Transition – Comparative Perspectives on Policies, Management and Reform (15), Organisation, Leadership and Welfare Management (7.5), Evaluation and Welfare Management (7.5), An Introduction to Public Economics (15), Elective courses or internship (15), courses in political science or courses in social work or courses in sociology (15), Research Methods in the Social Sciences (15), Master’s degree thesis (30).

Career prospects
The programme prepares you for advanced welfare management work in roles such as policy formulation and decision making at the local, regional, national, European or international level. A degree in Welfare Policies and Management can also lead to employment in the private sector, such as non-governmental institutions or profit-making organisations. In addition, the programme prepares students for doctoral studies and a continued academic career.

Entry requirements and how to apply
ENTRY REQUIREMENTS
A Bachelor’s degree with a major in political science, social work, or sociology. To be eligible for the programme students must also have a minimum average grade in their Bachelor’s studies equivalent to 3.0 in cumulated grade point average (CGPA) out of 4, C in the ECTS grading scale, and B in the American grading scale. For students with Swedish undergraduate studies the minimum requirement is G. English 6/English Course B. See www.lunduniversity.lu.se for details on English proficiency levels.

“I like the interdisciplinary design of the programme and it combines welfare policies with management strategies in an international context. Within the different courses we can contribute an individual perspective so that we can focus on what we are personally interested in. Since the Master’s is composed of three different majors, there is an exchange of diverse perspectives from students with various backgrounds. The contact between students and teachers is good and they welcome our feedback.”
Alisa Göhlstorf, from Germany

About the Department of Political Science

Political Science has been studied at Lund University since 1877. Today, Lund University’s Department of Political Science combines an ancient heritage with modern research and education. In recent years, the department has been very successful in competing for external research funding. Our research groups dedicated to central themes such as democratisation, globalisation, diplomacy, peace and conflict studies and environmental policy are at the forefront of international research.

The strong research profile of the Department of Political Science is reflected in its teaching. Our courses are developed in connection to research projects, providing students with the opportunity to study current research findings with lecturers who are themselves active researchers within their respective fields. Our educational environment has long been highly internationalised: many of our courses are offered in English. Studies at the Department of Political Science in Lund create the conditions for a successful professional career within both the public and private sectors. We train people for professional assignments which require qualified analysis and investigation, administration, leadership and information. We also offer opportunities for internships within public authorities and organisations both in Sweden and abroad. Political science graduates from Lund who have achieved leadership positions within politics, public authorities, foreign policy administration and business and industry are regularly invited to contribute to our courses and programmes, to inspire and share their experiences with current students.

About Lund University
