LUND UNIVERSITY | SWEDEN

- Master of Science in Asian Studies
- 2 years, full-time, 120 ECTS credits
- Centre for East and South-East Asian Studies
- Lund Campus
- Application deadline: January 2024
- Programme start: August 2024

PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

This interdisciplinary programme offers a comprehensive understanding of contemporary issues in East and South-East Asia, providing you with the knowledge and skills necessary to assess the region's social, cultural, economic, and political developments. Our curriculum is designed to enable you to specialise based on your regional, thematic, and disciplinary focus.

During your studies, you will read courses covering cross-regional issues and an interdisciplinary course on a country or region of your choice in East and South-East Asia. Our programme offers a unique opportunity to travel to Asia during the fourth semester to conduct fieldwork and gather material for your master's thesis.

Our experienced teachers are engaged in both teaching and research and have broad experience in the region. You will be exposed to a diverse range of cross-regional issues. We focus on the development of different countries, as well as the region's importance in international politics.

As a student in this programme, you will develop a range of skills and abilities that are highly valued in today's global job market. You will learn how to analyze complex issues related to social, cultural, political, and economic developments in East and South-East Asia. You will also develop critical thinking, independent research, and creative problem-solving skills. Our programme fosters the ability to work in an interdisciplinary setting and in a multicultural international environment, making you highly adaptable and able to work in a variety of settings. Upon graduation, you will have the skills required to work in research, government agencies, international organisations, or employment in other qualified capacities.
