PROGRAMME OVERVIEW

Founded more than 30 years ago, the LL.M in International Human Rights Law is a world-leading, well-established Master of Laws programme which combines academic rigor with concrete, implementation-oriented discussions. The LL.M Guide for Law Programs Worldwide ranks it among the top 10 in the field.

Since the programme is taught in collaboration with the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law, you will benefit both from the resources of a prestigious law school and from the institutional knowledge of a renowned implementation-oriented human rights institution. Throughout your two years in Lund, we aim to train your contextual legal awareness, conceptual and analytical clarity, and practical skills.

Our carefully curated set of courses is designed to equip you with an understanding of how international human rights law is made, applied, enforced and debated in the global context. We study and teach these themes from multiple perspectives and with reference to diverse experiences. You will be taught by an international faculty whose teaching and research skills meet the highest international standards.

As an LL.M. student in Lund, you will form part of a lively and ambitious cohort of students from countries located on all continents. You will benefit from interacting with a diverse and dynamic community of scholars and practitioners in the field, including guest professors, visiting distinguished scholars and experts. Notable guests at the Faculty and RWI have included Kofi Annan, Shirin Ebadi, Hans Corell, Chris Patten, Rosalyn Higgins, Gro Harlem Brundtland and Anne Orford.

Upon graduation, you will have a degree held in high esteem and join our ever-growing group of international human rights alumni working all over the world.
