Programme overview
The MSc in Sociology prepares students for PhD studies in Sociology as well as for advanced professional work in socio-logical inquiries and community planning. The programme allows students considerable freedom to select courses according to interest and future needs. The programme enables students to develop critical thinking, analytical skills and the ability to conduct societal analysis, as well as to acquire specialised knowledge of sociology. On completion of the programme, students are awarded a degree of Master of Science (120 credits) specialising in sociology.

In the programme, students will acquire:
• Knowledge and understanding of sociology, including both broad knowledge of the field and a considerable degree of specialised knowledge of certain areas of the field as well as specialised insight into current research and development work
• Specialised knowledge of research methods in sociology
• The ability to critically and systematically integrate knowledge and analyse, assess and deal with complex phenomena, issues and situations, even with limited information
• The ability to identify and formulate research questions critically, autonomously and creatively as well as to plan and, using appropriate methods, undertake advanced tasks within predetermined time frames and so contribute to the formation of knowledge as well as the ability to evaluate this work
• The skills required for participation in research and development work or autonomous employment in some other qualified capacity

About the Department of Sociology

The Department of Sociology at Lund University was founded in 1947 and is part of the Faculty of Social Sciences. The Department consists of three divisions: Sociology, Social anthropology and Education. The department currently has about 1,100 students and about 100 researchers and teachers.

We conduct research in a variety of fields, which is also reflected in our wide range of courses given both on campus in Lund and as internet courses. We offer courses and programmes on both the undergraduate and postgraduate level. The department of Sociology cooperates with a large number of other departments within Lund University and other universities globally.

About Lund University

Lund University was founded in 1666 and is repeatedly ranked among the world’s top 100 universities. The University has 40,000 students and 7,400 staff based in Lund, Helsingborg and Malmö. We are united in our efforts to understand, explain and improve our world and the human condition.

Lund is the most popular study location in Sweden. The University offers one of the broadest ranges of programmes and courses in Scandinavia, based on cross-disciplinary and cutting-edge research. The University has a distinct international profile, with partner universities in over 70 countries.

Lund University has an annual turnover of SEK 8 billion, two-thirds of which are destined for research. Our eight faculties conduct strong research in many different areas, including over thirty research fields in which we are world-leading. Many scientific breakthroughs and pioneering innovations have originated from Lund University.
